The first short length of the Great Eastern's most eventful voyage has already been made. The worst of the two great perils of the river should are | unfurnished. passed, and she new lice safe at anchor here in ten fathoms water and some 12 miles below the moorings which she dropped this morning at Sheerness. To-murrow, at midday, she has a still more shellow and intricate course to do, to wind down the Alexandra Channel, and this at half-speed will occupy her at least three hours. That har once passed her route to the ocean will lie open an as fo before her. The start from Sheerness this morning was fixed for 12,, and at 12 to the very instant, the Great Eastern was under way Therwas no harry, bustle, noise, or excitement of any and in getting his off, indeed, with such quiel prometitude was everything effected that the fent thip was somally some minutes under steam infore the majority of those on board knew she had left the moorings which have held her so safe with raugh and of the most bois error winters that have been known in the Medway for your. The two ' Troimans" which have now been down nearly, a year and each with its full scope of chine our were not got in without considerable Iffigulty, for these archors bite hard and deep into the earth. The instant, however, that they were. ily up, the word was presed, and at half-spread, and feeling her way cautiously among the patches of shallow banks, the great ship began her voyage this anchorage. Mr. Brookman, R. N. s. lost in the navy, and who is generally charged with the responsibility of taking the largest ships of car down the Medway, was on the bridge as pilot, and with him also were Captain Moriarty. B. N. who has sailed in all the five Atlantic Telegraph ex-

relitions that have ever started, and with him bint, Henderson and Mr. Halpin, his chief officer. As we have said, at once when the rignal was given the ship slipped easily away. The men on Stable adjulning. to cheer her as she very slowly felt her way bewen them, and the whole crew of the guardibip Cowerful, awarmed into the rigging, and gave anch rounds of shouts as might have been beard t Chathum itself. A few yachts followed in the wake, conspicuous among them for speed and beauty being those belonging to Mr. Edwards, Mr. ender, and Mr. Barclay. These, with the two owerful steamings in attendance on the Great natern, formed the whole ergort of one of the A the Praya, between the Premises lately on most important and best-manned electrical expe- cupied by MESSES. William Corry, and the Medway, which are herenfor to accompany her across the Atlantic will no leave for a day or two, though the whole -quadron will renderrous for some short time at In the short run diwn to this place, the newly | 182 & Oo. repaired engines of the Great Eastern worked to perfection. During the past winter Mr. Beckwith, her chief engineer, has been it occant in his I hours towards getting them into perfect trim All the boilers have been strengthened, their week parts removed and replaced by new plat s. be fines, firebar gratings, and funnels have been a trafully cleaned, and the eff-ot of these improvements, with the change from the foul to the cleanly condition of the ship's hull, was at once on starting apparent in the increased speed of the ship. Though cliere was only 151b, steam in the profile buile s; and little over 121b, in the screw, a speed of seven knots was soon gained, and this when the puddles hour w re made. This time it is clear that from | Maroantile firm. His to 9 knots are easily within the capabilities of the great ship than the is desper in the water than she has ever before been on venturing to a m. Her trim at present is rather calculated to diminish her rate of progress, for the present exigencies of stowage have brought her duwn rather too much by the head. She has above 4,000 tons more dead weight in her than last year and her mean draught is within an inch for 30 of 32 feet—s deeper laden vessel than till this day his ever passed down the Thames. Such an extraordinary depth has been a mat-ter of great anxiety to those interested in the suggests of the expedition, for the few channels to the Thumas mouth from Sheemess are almost as narrow as they are winding and shallow. The FIGAT very commodiaus and delightfully course was last year taken by the Bullook Chan- | L situated House, on Bunham Road, named nel, which was specially buoyed for the purpose Persespolis, having 12 large and airy Rooms, with by the Teinity House.
